What do you think of having high school students wear school uniforms?

Viewpoint A

Introduction

School uniforms have traditionally been adopted by high schools in Japan. Now most high schools require their students to wear school uniforms. However, there are pros and cons about requiring school uniforms.

For example, some people claim that students wearing school uniforms look almost exactly the same, and it will not help them develop their sense of uniqueness at all. On the other hand, others say that students wearing them can develop a sense of identity, a sense of belonging to the same school.

Below are some materials that may help you think about the issue and decide your position.
